1. Merely add chef starts to each recipe, when searching the user who made the recipe, this does a second search on the user. If the user no longer exists then a second query is made to this user. Also applies for accounts that have privacy options on
2. Added recipes belong to the company and not the user to avoid complications with deleting user accounts
3. Add to QA manual -> allow users to program independently
4.